El Gaucho's beef steaks are from one feed lot: Grade A certified Prime Angus and dry aged. Perhaps that is one of the reasons why this El Gaucho has been in business for fifty years. To quote Franco D'Amico, general manager, "The steaks bring our guests in, but the wild seafood and other imaginative dishes keep them coming back." The grill items are prepared on one of the only three custom-built vertical grills in the world.

The atmosphere is sexy and swanky, with table-side service, and the music of Live Latin guitars each night. As you gaze at your surroundings, you might almost feel that it is "Showtime" and you are in Hollywood circa 1955. At the same time the friendly and conscientious staff are there only to make you feel at home.

SAY YOU SAW IT IN THE ENTERTAINMENT AND LIFESTYLE MONTHLY

The mantle of history surrounds you when you visit this venerable establishment, the oldest of Portland's eateries. Huber's moved into the 3rd and Stark Street location in 1910 and features mahogany paneling, terrazzo floors, stained glass skylights and brass fixtures. The restaurant flourishes under the management and ownership of the Louie family, and it is their goal to keep it going for at least another 100 years. Bustling with happy voices and contented sighs of satisfaction, this eatery offers a large, varied menu. Starring among the varied pasta, seafood, salad and steak offerings is the roast turkey, which is served in many guises every day of the year. A generous selection of desserts is waiting to round out your meal. Then there are the signature classic drinks, among which is Spanish Coffee, which is so popular that the bar uses more Kahlúa than any other site in the galaxy.

Marrakesh offers diners a warm welcome into rooms layered with soft fabric. Seat yourself on the traditional low pillowy seats in traditional Moroccan style. Eat using three fingers of one hand, pushing bread against tasty morsels of spiced meats and vegetables, couscous flavored with bits of onion, raisin and chickpeas with ginger sauce. To sample more highlights of Marrakesh, order the Royale Feast Dinner for four, which features specials of the day and costs $19 per person. For a special occasion, call three days in advance and Marrakesh will spit-roast a whole sheep. Open seven nights a week. Reservations recommended. A five course meal is offered for $17.50.

Porta Terra is a welcome new addition to Portland. The restaurant is an exuberant collaboration between local restaurateur Ty Wells and Chef Nathan Read. Together they have created a menu incorporating the flavors of Northern Italy with the ingredients of the Pacific Northwest. Porta Terra has its own entrance on 6th Avenue in the new Hilton Tower. The locals have found a new eating place.

Celebrating 20 Years of Portland's Finest Entertainment & Still No Cover!

Rolling Stone described the Candlelight Café and Bar as a "small bump and grind establishment with a very eclectic clientele where even your father could get lucky."

A longtime customer says, "There are no politics here, just good music." He's right. The music is primarily blues, rhythm and blues, and soul, with an excellent list of regular and guest artists.

Get on over there.

Edelweiss is one of Portland's great treasures. The Baier family started in 1982 with proven Old World recipes and a commitment to using only the finest and freshest ingredients. Now over 90 varieties of German sausages, wursts, loaves, salamis and headcheese are made weekly. The staff is knowledgeable; they encourage you to taste and explore the wonderful flavors of Edelweiss.

The curious might reflect on the origins of sausage and its development, but food lovers acknowledge the year 1929 when the quality products of Otto Eichentopf were introduced to Portland. His grandson Jerry and his wife Gretchen have taken over the business. Their party platters using Otto's fine products are nonpareil.

Welcome to the City of Portland!

It's a great time of year to be in Portland! The members of the Portland Concierge association welcome you and stand ready to be of assistance.

Although we see the term "Concierge" more and more often, there may still be some confusion about what a concierge is or does. Until relatively recently, a concierge was found only in the most luxurious hotels of the world. It was a title held by the property's foremost expert on the "Who, What, Where & How" regarding any special request the hotel guest might have. The concierge was often the only person who could get you a table at the chicest restaurants (especially on short notice!) and knew who to see and where to go to get the best of the very best.

Nowadays, we can find a concierge in many of the better hotels, apartment buildings, corporate towers and even shopping malls and retail stores. The principle is still the same: a concierge is the person to go to for information, questions, suggestions, and assistance. The individual holding the title of concierge at any establishment was (ideally) hired because of their ability to provide, above all else, professional, appropriate and dignified assistance with whatever the need of their client. Anyone seeking out a member of the PCA (Portland Concierge Association) can be assured of exactly that. As long as a request is legal, ethical, and appropriate, the members of the PCA stand ready to assist!

You can find a PCA member at the following Portland businesses:

- The Benson Hotel
- Doubletree Hotel - Lloyd Center
- Hilton Portland and Executive Tower
- Pioneer Place Shopping Center
- Portland Oregon Visitors Association Visitors Center
- Saks Fifth Avenue
- The Henry Condominium

So whether you are visiting our city and need a table at a posh restaurant or merely need to know where the closest ATM is, a Concierge is the best person to ask!

At your service,

The Members of the Portland Concierge Association

The Portland Concierge Association (<http://www.portlandconcierge.org>) is a non-profit fellowship of hotel and corporate concierges. Our purpose is to promote, educate, and maintain the high standards of the Concierge. We are solely responsible for the contents of this page.
